I live about 100 yards from the large beaver river. I deliver papers in the morning so am up early to do so. I see many mayfly looking insects on cars and flying about. I've been meaning to take pictures of them to get an ID. But just as you described. On a warm waterway and I see them early in the morning just about every day. I've seen them pretty thick at night in the lights of the local gas station. If I can, I'll take some pics to show, I've seen a few different ones. I'm new at this whole bug ID thing so this might be fun for you pro's out there.
