Not to mention we did 9.5 mile float, with launch on NY side and take out on PA side, requiring driving a few miles further down to cross the bridge and then back up on NY side. Also that PA side road is just terrible and the boats bounce around like crazy.

I did not get involved in the planning as I jumped in at the last minute when a room came open due to a cancellation of another guy in the party, therefore I will not comment on the planning, other than to say we will definitely work on the communication and planning next time. We effectively had 3 different parties, arriving at different times, staying in different places, etc and I think that was the biggest thing leading to confusion. If we all had been at the Green Acres or Capri or _____ and left from one location we would have been good. Cell communication can be tough there.
