

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Midges? Help me identify

Re: Midges? Help me identify

Author: : MKern

Date: : 2006/11/29 10:15:30

URL:

At my home creek: Lycoming, I often see small (size 26-30) barrbell shaped flies that are a deep olive color. However, this is in the middle of summer. I have never identified the insects or even know if thay hatch out of the stream. instead of trying to classify the fly, I just went home the first night I experienced these bugs and tied something similar on a size 20 hook (one ball of olive dubbing, sparse hackle int he middle, another ball of dubbing, and a sparse poly wing). The next night it worked.

Which brings me to another point. Just because you see flying bugs, doesn't mean thay are aquatic insects. there are a lot of bugs out this time of year.