Just a tip. Go to your local library and look at the books and dvds on flyfishing there. I find the books will help you locate areas to fish, talk about types of gear and techniques from rigging to casting. (free) I was pleasantly surprised at what my library carried.

I also would recommend based on the numbers of folks evolving through their gear (noted from above in the link) you look on Ebay for used equipment. I am not an Ebay guy, never bought anything there but my buddy gets AWESOME deals on there. I am the kinda guy that likes to be able to have a little more recourse and deal directly with the manufactor or a flyshop. But if you buy other stuff on there why not. Paul
