
Subject: : Stream Reports

Topic: : Little Lehigh, Lehigh Co, 08/27/10

Little Lehigh, Lehigh Co, 08/27/10

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2010/8/28 8:40:42

URL:

Yesterday, with the NB Susky blown and bass fishing out, Afishinado and I decided to tackle the Little Lehigh and lower our sights on lowly trout. 😊

It's been my hope to travel a bit more in PA these days and visit some of our legacy trout streams - partly as part of a long term art project and partly to break out of the mold of central PA streams. Since I haven't fished the LL since 1987, it was about time. We focused on the reg water and had a very nice day with bright skies and nice temps. Lotsa joggers, dog walkers, and bicyclists were out on the trails. Beautiful stream with lots of giant willows. I didn't get a water temp but it was clear and likely a normal level. We arrived in the am. Many fishermen but no tricos were seen until later around 11am but these were very sporadic and seemed to bring few if any fish to the surface. By mid day most of the fishermen had left. We had success on various methods. Tom got fish on small nymphs. I suppose I caught maybe 8 fish or so, including a 15" brown and a fat brookie. Missed at least as many. All appeared to be stockies and all fell for terrestrials for me. Nice day.

Attach file:

 Afishinado on LL.jpg (304.32 KB)

