

Subject: : Professional Stream Reports

Topic: : Giving the trout a break

Re: Giving the trout a break

Author: : dryflyguy

Date: : 2010/8/28 14:21:57

URL:

I'll miss you're great reports until you come back.

I've always wondered why the yough tailrace runs out of cold water at this time of year.

I do know that the lake level is pretty low right now, and I guess that would explain things for this year.

But even in wet years - when the lake stays at a high level - the tailrace still always seems to warm up in late summer. Maybe the lake turns over? Or the dam operators change the discharge level?

Anyway, I'll be fishing in the area monday. But I plan on hitting a brookie stream on which I've never seen temps out of 60's.