Is my math wrong?

6 wells x 5,000,000 gallons = 30,000,000 gallons

79 rigs x 30,000,000 = 2,370,000,000 gallons

2,370,000,000 divided by 365 days = about 640 million gallons a day?

Isn't this 2 billion 370 million gallons of water?

I am using an old calculator!

I won't even attempt a cfs calculation as my head hurts already.

Either way, the prediction is for about 400 active wells a year by 2012. Also, most well pads will have 8 wells drilled per pad.

The really good news is that means that "only" 1% of this water, 2,370,000 gallons, is considered to be cancer causing chemicals!
