It's a project called the Jack M Project, so he can go there and catch all the stocked trout he wants. 😊

In all seriousness, Big Spring does not suffer from thermal stress, even on the hottest days of summer.

Providing more cover and narrowing the stream may help, but the issue as I see it is to get rid of the rainbows.

Then you see the brook trout population expand and you see big brookies, the way it used to be before there was a fish commission and before there was stocking.
