You really didn't HAVE to ruin my whole day, by reminding me that you're going to be fishing "God's Waters" soon and I can't get away right now!?! (Although, with a little "juggling".....?).

Regardless, I truly wish you the absolute BEST of luck, on your excursion and hope your rod doesn't see rest, until you pack up to head home! "Fall" on these rivers is an unreal time for fly fishing as I'm sure you already know.....with the Bluebacks heading up to spawn from the reservoirs and nearby lakes, it's hard to even get a fly down thru, to the Cutts at times.

Just don't forget, (if the timing's right)I, to stop and eat at that little roadside hovel at the confluence of the Selway, Lochsa, that forms the start of the Clearwater fork! I can't remember the name of it, darn it!?!
