Well I have at the very least a rod for you. Scientific Anglers 9' 7/8 wt. I've got some lightly used 7 or 8wt line for it as well. The only reel I have is a Redington Rs2 5/6. Heavy reel that actually balances the rod well but I don't know that it will hold 7wt line and most likely not the 8 at all. I could cut down some of the shooting line to save spool capacity and still maintain a decent amount of backing. Let me know what you think.

Edit

That rod sounds pretty good.. how much do you want for it? I saw the cabelas cahill reel is on sale for only $9. Good enough for a beginner!

Not for steelhead in aint! For big, bad steelhead a decent reel with a decent drag is recommended.
