jay... you might as well give up.

There are a few stream names that get thrown around on here that I personally know landowners on. A lot seem to think there has been increased pressure in the past few years, and are looking to post parts of their property.

Some places may be open, public property for only half of the stream mileage, which, does lead to "SOME" people over-stepping their boundaries, and trespassing on land they should not be w/o permission.
