

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Do you consider it ethical to advertise small streams?

Re: Do you consider it ethical to advertise small streams?

Author: : salvelinusfontinalis

Date: : 2010/9/24 1:43:15

URL:

I think another stupid debate about this subject is hilarious. You know where I stand on the subject.

A better question is:

Is it ethical to try and regulate what people post on a private forum, when the owner has expressed the view that he wants people to share information?

From the man himself:

Quote:

This website is here to help foster a shared interest in expanding our knowledge, experience and most importantly our enjoyment for fly fishing in Pennsylvania.

As a community site that encourages fly fishing in Pennsylvania, this site also encourages the sharing of ideas, fish stories, stream locations, and general helping of others to learn more and become better fly fishing anglers.

Seems pretty cut and dry to me, but im starting to wonder if this "site that encourages" is rather "discouraging" posters from sharing such info.