Does someone have the right to broadcast it, yes; but is it ethical and sportsman-like, no.

By announcing stuff about a stream you are inviting people (and yolkles) to the stream.

I do see how, "the more people know the better it can be preserved." However, there's only so much money and so many people do keep the stream "protected."

I think it can be protected by just leaving it alone and sometimes when a land owner posts a stream, that's the best protection FOR THE STREAM (not the fisherman).
