I agree with afishinado about the index finger grip addressing the issue of "breaking" the rod too far back. However, there are limitations to it. Not only is bad for larger rods and heavier lines as he states... It's also a bad grip to use if you start trying to cast for any distance. So don't get too accustomed to using it.

However it is a good way of ensuring accuracy. So if you start fishing in tight quarters, you may want to give it a try.
