

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Strike Indicator

Re: Strike Indicator

Author: : wetnet

Date: : 2010/10/14 22:23:29

URL:

Ha! Ha! Still looks like it gives you fishy fingers, which for me doesn't seem to be a problem. 🍷 Can you find me a product to pick up stinky socks? I did see a commercial for a mattress cover that absorbs the smell of gas. I'm not sure how effective it is for side-sleepers.

Sorry off topic, back to the subject...you absolutely do not have to spend money and you can be cheap making your own thingambobbers. 12 inches of gold stren wrapped around a pencil, boiled for 5 minutes and shoved into a freezer..spray it with a little floatant, you've got somethingr better than a thingambobber..you've got a floating in line indicator. Or just use a big ol Grey Whulff or a parachute ant as your thingambobber. Twice the chance to get a hit. It's all good, really. Change it up and have some fun.