I kept getting fish to follow and take long looks at my streamers, but no hook-ups, when I went a few weeks ago. I tried swinging them too, but to no avail. I'll just have to keep at it. I did decide, at one point, to try fishing a dry. I used a downstream drift swung through the current, with a size 14 CDC and EH Caddis (I tried to create a wake on some drifts, and others just a natural dead drift). I had a few fish look up, but only one tried to take it. Of course I missed it, probably because I couldn't believe that a Steelie would hit on top. I think the hit was more out of aggravation on his behalf. I probably drifted the Caddis over him at least 50 times before he tried to take.
