The customer base and the fact that Cabelas and and the Poconos shops are so close really makes things tuff.

I think you've hit the nail on the head and of course you are very close to this scene/market.

Tom, you have nailed that shop! The only asset they had there was a young little punk, but alas even he has left. That shop is basically a high end outdoor clothing shop with about 15% of the floor space occupied by Orvis rods, tying material, etc. They did have a few high end Able reels. Based on reports the "shop" is varying degrees of failing/closing.
