I think if a store of any kind depends upon the sympathy of its customers to stay in competition for business, it is doomed to failure. The only way to have a successful FFing retail outlet is to get a user-friendly internet presence as well, run the store from your home or have an office in the store to run a sideline business after keeping up fully with the website orders and shipping responsibilities. If I wanted to run a Flyshop near a minor destination stream/watershed, I would combine it with a campground and/or convenience store, and or motel/cabin rental.
