

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : New Sage BASS RODS !!!!!!!

Re: New Sage BASS RODS !!!!!!!

Author: : ginkyhackle

Date: : 2007/10/9 12:10:13

URL:

You know Fellas:

If you created a really wide base that was almost parabolic in structure, a really dense line could move relatively well on a rod like this. Again, I'm thinking, like Padraic, that you'd have to go to heroic lengths to get this rod to load in anything like a traditional manner. However, if you're on a boat, in an elevated position you might be able to get some distance. Interesting concept, this short and girthy rod thing -- Scott has a "backwater" rod that has a similar form. I'd love to hear from someone who has cast one of these.