Fred,

The one thing I'm confident of is that Sage makes quality rods. Whether it casts and fishes better for you, only you can be the judge.

Go to the shop, bring some flies with you to cast test cast (with the hook points cut off), and give it try. That's the only thing that really counts.

Some advice though, if you are in the market for a new bass rod, try other brands and models before you make a decision. There are a lot of good rods out there in the $350 range.

Good luck.
