
Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : New Sage BASS RODS !!!!!!!

Re: New Sage BASS RODS !!!!!!!

Author: : ginkyhackle

Date: : 2007/10/10 21:34:55

URL:

Okay Guys:

Here's the only link I could find that actually shows the $625 Scott Backcountry (not Backwater) rod. It looks more like a traditional heavy-duty freshwater rod than the Sage rod, and as with all Scott products, it is finished in a much classier manner than the Sage. I really don't like the fighting butt and hardware Sage placed on their "value" series (fli, launch and this Bass stick). There is really no excuse for scrimping on already inexpensive items like these. For example the TFO TiCr (7wt and up) and much sturdier hardware and a nice fighting butt -- however that rod does not come with a tube and is made in South Korea (still compares with high-end Sages for much less!)

I can't seem to find what kind of line this stick is meant to throw. Again, it looks like a classic 7/8wt.

http://www.flyfishingoutfitters.com/p ... aspx?pid=ROD-SCO-CONC-977