J- yea, got ya.

Several times I thought about the different fly rods and gear for the different types of fishing.

Specifically, a fly anglers rod progression. Understand that an angler would be heavily influenced into specific types of gear by their mentors and or how they broke into the sport or the types of water readily accessible to them.

Was influenced by strictly trout fly anglers; hence the St Croix 5/6 weight as my first rod. I am sure those close to the shore might have a 8 or 9 weight as their first fly pole or a 7 or 8 for those in steelhead territory.

My progression was probably like many others.

Got the all around rod, then a small rod for small streams, next was a 6 wt for streamers and smallmouths. Moved on to an 8 wt for steelhead/salt rod- this has turned out to be a very versatile fly rod for me.

Like to chase new experiences and the excitement, challenge and fun that comes with it. Got plenty to learn.
