I kinda like having both topics on the warm water forum, it seems to me that folks willing to go after everything from Muskies to Carp with the long rod have a good sense of adventure. Sooner or later I think we all start to toy with the idea of trying saltwater flyfishing and having made several trips to the salt over the last three years, it sort of gets in your blood. The reason I think we should leave the forum stay combined is because alot of the patterns and tecniques cross over to warm water (freshwater).

My salt box goes with me everytime I launch the kayak on moving water and I have used striper patterns to throw at cruising pike and Muskies. Just my two cents!
