

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : seen anything strange, wierd, or creepy while flyfishing in pa

Re: seen anything strange, wierd, or creepy while flyfishing in pa

Author: : pcray1231

Date: : 2010/12/13 9:50:32

URL:

hmm, skinny dippers once. Fisherman rolling head over heels in some rapids once (I helped him to shore at the next riffle down). I've caught 2 fish with one cast multiple times.

In one weekend, I had a trifecta where wildlife did not like me. Got attacked by a goose (pecking my knees and all). Got bit by a snake (seems normal but is actually rather unusual). And was held in the water by a possibly rabid raccoon. He stayed on the shoreline but followed me up and downstream looking and growling. I eventually found a place where I could cross to the other side, but he continued to mirror me, and I ended up throwin rocks at it to get it to leave long enough to cross and get to my car.

As for more common things, it is always creepy to me when the bats start swooping low near the head. Thats when its time to quit for the evening!