What a midge swap?

The best way I can explain it, is it's a cookie exchange, but using flies and with MEN! lol

Everyone ties up their own style of fly; one for every participant (in this case 2 different flies, 2 for everyone). Then they get sent to a swap master and they will split them all up and send them out from there. So everyone will get the same mixture of everyone's ties. It's fun and a good way to try new things.

On the main page of the fly tying thread there is a link to some pictures of past swaps. That is a great place to look for new patterns to try, recipies and all.
