

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : San Juan worm

Re: San Juan worm

Author: : gfen

Date: : 2010/12/28 11:35:27

URL:

Quote:

jayL wrote:

Yes, they work very well.

Haven't you seen the suckers spawn on the lehigh valley streams? Trout will be eating those eggs. I sometimes fish them for trout, especially during the sucker spawn. They are also one of my favorite steelhead flies.

The secret is angora.

Uh oh, being called on my sucker water secret....

Seriously, yeah, I've seen it, and I tink that's usually the time I tie one of those sodden masses on the line and try. Again, it just looks too damned hokey, I can't believe.

I think that's the secret ingredient, too. Belief. Me, I got none. Its gotta trump angora, which I decidedly don't have. I do have sparkle yarn and flash body braid, though, which I've also used, looked at, and put away.