

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : weight below the nymph?

Re: weight below the nymph?

Author: : Anonymous

Date: : 2007/10/18 20:09:26

URL:

Welcome to the boards, Highsticker!

Good, post, as there are always "new ways, to do old tricks".

However, I'm with Jaybo..... my terminus fly is always weighted.

As hard as it IS to believe, I actually know a fly angler OLDER than me, who gave me a very interesting point on this very topic.....

"Use a weighted terminal fly, instead of shot. The second fly, doubles your chances and the fish WILL HEAR the "odd ticking sound" a shot makes along the bottom of a stream, even if it's soft lead!"