

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Amur Pike?

Re: Amur Pike?

Author: : scotto

Date: : 2007/10/24 9:38:44

URL:

I was raised near Glendale Lake and fished there quite often as a kid. There is a 10 hp limit for boats and we had a small boat for the lake.

I have caught quite a number of these Amur Pike. They seem to me to be a shorter, but fatter northern pike. They do have a spotted pattern. But they are found and caught like every other pike - shallow grassy coves in spring to spawn, ambushing baitfish near deep water escape routes in summer and dogging baitfish in the shallows to fatten for winter in autumn.

Overall, nothing special - no better or worse than northerns.