Art Flick's book on the hatches and the Catskill patterns for those hatches. I can't remember the exact title. And I'm not sure if I still have it. I'm pretty sure I never sold it or gave it away. But I may have lost it along the way, or it's buried in a box somewhere...

Flick's book is the first I bought, but the first I read was Trout by Ray Bergman. I got that out of the library many times when I was a kid.

A few years ago, Donny Bastian tied all the flies from Bergman's Trout and had them all framed up. A beautiful thing to see. Some restaurant in MD bought those flies and probably still have them on the wall where you could stop and see them.
