

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : Competitive Fly-fishing

Re: Competitive Fly-fishing

Author: : midnightangler

Date: : 2011/1/24 11:41:16

URL:

The thing I've always disliked about FF tourneys is that they take away two of (what I believe are) the most important aspects of successful fly-fishing: choosing the prime stretches of stream to fish and choosing the optimum time to be on the water given the conditions.

Also, many of the rules never made sense to me. No split shot or indicators, weird rules about how you can construct your rig... who decides this stuff?

On the other hand, I've always thought that the one fly tournament was a cool idea. If you're going to host a fishing tournament, you might as well do it for a good cause!