SeanC- Something that did slip my mind is the whole PR aspect.

Shedding light on fly fishing and introducing new people to it, could be a very positive thing. Could also be a very negative thing, if conservation and ethics take a backseat to "look at the size of my hawg". I really don't know, your post does make me a little more interested in learning more about it. As you are correct in assuming I know very little and have zero experience in the competition.
