Jayl again this rod was not designed for all around fishing. Its designed for the euro tactics. By the way you might be suprised but a perfect day of fishing for me is hiking up a small mountain brook trout stream with my 1wt and enjoying a stream side lunch. Its not all drag racing

I understand that, and you'll recall that I argued against using it as an "all around" rod in another thread.

But even when I am "euro nymphing", I would prefer a balanced rod. I also use this rod for fishing some small streamers, as well as indicator nymphing in occasional situations.

And I expect it to be usable in a pinch if fish start rising.

The rod is advertised as something that can handle all of that if need be. I prefer to balance it. To each his own. And again, if my arm gets tired, I go find a log and take a break. I don't worry about weight.
