There seems to be some new guys here that might be interested in attending an instructional get together. This looks like a great opportunity to gather the troops, and help out some of our beginners.

What do you guys think?

I'd be willing to arrange this, probably on an upcoming Saturday in February, and the Little Lehigh would be a good place to meet. I'm thinking some casting instruction, basic fishing techniques for beginners, and covering the gear we use.

Please reply to this post if you'd like to volunteer to help with instructing, and also if you'd be interested in learning some basics.
