Great thread.

I'm getting more into remote fishing and one stream in particular my wife worries about me fishing. I've fallen a few times and once I didn't see a crack in 2 big rocks and one leg slipped down all the way to my thigh... could have easily broken a leg. Now I try to fish that stream with someone else just in case. I always have food and water on me on any trip. I usually wake up early and don't want to eat that early, but after some hard fishing I realize I need some nourishment. I know I should carry some other things that were mentioned in this post, so thanks guys!
