planning on scouting areas of Spring Creek this weekend. I live in State College and looking for a few starting areas...any help would be greatly appreciated!

This question is asked a lot, and the answer is almost always the same. Please don't take it as a snide response, because it's honestly as close to the truth as you can get.

The best place to start on spring creek is in the water. Headwaters to mouth. There are tons of fish throughout, and access is ample and well marked. There is no wrong place to look. Any decision you make, or any suggestion you follow will result in the same probability of success, so you may as well pick a starting point and enjoy the adventure. Most roads that go within site of the stream will have access, and you can drive the entire length of the stream in an afternoon.
