

---

Subject: : Paflyfish General Forum

Topic: : best fly shops in PA?

Re: best fly shops in PA?

Author: : flyfish10

Date: : 2007/11/12 22:25:21

URL:

NUMBER 1 - has to be flyfishers paradise. a couple reasons are, a few years ago while i was in college there my buddy won about 3000 bucks playing online poker and decided to buy a new fly rod. he gets there with the intentions of buying an orvis superfine, no testing out rods or anything. at that time i think they were a little more than 500 bucks. before he pays for it i forget the guys name, (it wasn't steve dan or doug back then, it was the other guy) asked him why doesn't he try out a g loomis before he buys the superfine, stating its just as good and about 200 bucks less. at the time i couldn't believe he was trying to sell him a cheaper rod when my friend had the money out for the superfine (and yes there were a couple more of the same exact superfines still on the rack). now that in my opinion is top quality service. another thing i love about flyfishers paradise is that there's no guide service attached with the fly shop so on the well known rivers and streams they'll give you a straight answer about where to fish and whats working. as long as they're in business and i get to fish center county now and then i'll never buy from another shop

SECOND - a&g outfitters scranton, they're my home flyshop and they're about the most relaxed people i've met. always in a good mood, say hi when you walk in the store and ask "where you fishin today" if you stand by the flies long enough with a blank stare on your face. all around good guys.