Tom,

The SE pa region is the last to change. We fall under the Pittsburgh minus 5 degree factor. Just like Erie and the Laurel Highlands are under the Pittsburgh Plus 5 degree factor.

At least thats how I saw it when I lived out your way.

Our weather is influenced heavily by coastal fronts. You know that...you lived out here didn't you?

At work the other day in York we were looking north toward the mountain range and noted that the tree mass on the hills are still primarily green while the isolated trees are in full color. Has something to do with the ambients being influenced by thermal retention.
