It would certainly be nice to do it again. I too had a blast last year. J-man is correct that generally there's more bass further upriver on the Juniata. I like the area around Thompsontown as it's got big fish and good access. However, we could certainly try another section up around or above Lewistown and hopefully have some better luck. The North Branch Susky would also be a great float/wade river for bass and probably about the same distance for the east side guys. We had some west side guys make the long drive to center state to fish the J last year. The North Branch would be further but maybe not much in terms of time if they can get up on I 80(?). Or, of course, the west side guys could do the Allegheny. We'll see. Something should come together.
