Nope - not legal for the comp guys.

How are they not practical? Tie one to your butt section of the leader, and add tippet as needed, without using up any of the butt section tying knots.

They're not? I thought that's where they got the idea from?

Didn't think about monofluoro connections, but other than that, I'm unimpressed. Droppers are just as easy to snug up a cinch to a bloodknot.

They do make leaders look even more fiddly, though. I'm not sure if that impresses chicks, but I'm gonna hold out hope.
