

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Anyone use xink? (liquid Fly sink)

Re: Anyone use xink? (liquid Fly sink)

Author: : franklin

Date: : 2011/4/7 16:29:57

URL:

Quote:

gfen wrote:

Quote:

buffalo7 wrote:

Are you talking about the photoflo for drying film. I don't think I have anymore of that, I gave all my dark room equipment away.

As far as the xink goes, I'm always afraid of getting it on something I want to float. I can feel the difference when I cast, it must add weight or cause it to obsorb more water.

Indeed.

IMNSHO, Xink is just a wetting agent, like Photoflo. Feels the exact same to my fingers, at least.

Photoflo, in turn, was able to be replicated by a diluted dish detergent.

Yes, I agree. Went and checked my vest. The bottle of sink gunk on my vest is a Loon product. The bottle on my son's vest is Xink which feels as you described. The Loon Sinket feels like silicon.