Dear TUNA,

DJ's fly is absolutely fantastic but in reality it's hard to beat the ones made with foam cylinders like Jay suggested. They don't look anywhere near as pretty but they do catch fish.

Just be sure to wrap a solid thread base on the hook before you glue the sliced cylinder down. Use Zap-A-Gap or some other thick glue to attach the cylinder because Super Glue doesn't work too well for that job.

All you need to do is tie on a tail of bucktail or calftail and your done once body is glued on.

If you are hellbent on buying some I'll second albatross and suggest looking at your local Gander Mountain store. They have a pretty good selection in most of the stores I've been in and the prices are reasonable.

Regards,

Tim Murphy 😊
