

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : woul like some helpful Input

Re: woul like some helpful Input

Author: : draws

Date: : 2011/4/10 11:17:04

URL:

As with ever hobby that I have picked you start out with what you can afford and that will work fine. As you progress you become more experienced and you will require more specialized equipment that provides a better and perhaps slightly more productive experience. I started out with a browning rod and Martin reel topped with the cheapest Wally world line I could find and now let's just say I have moe rods and the gear to go along with it. My wife is shocked at how quickly I have outgrown the area she allowed me for fly tying. Don't let anyone con you into more than you feel comfortable with. I only fished a 6 wt for years on a reel with no drag for everything from sun fish and bass to trout and my first full year of steelhead fishing. I did ok. Have fun and good luck