Even though I took a good natured shot at techies and gadget fishermen on another post I will say quality tackle increases the pleasure of our sport.

I had to relearn that lesson when I retired to Florida and switched to spinning-figured it was silly to put out big dollars for barbaric tackle. Ended up wasting a huge chunk of green on bargain shopping.

That does not mean you have to buy the most expensive but beware of ratings on sites like bass Pro and Cabelas.

Go with what these gentlemen suggest and try before you buy-Don't compromise on something that you think will be good enough. Its either good tackle or it isn't.
