

Subject: : Beginner Forum

Topic: : Anyone use xink? (liquid Fly sink)

Re: Anyone use xink? (liquid Fly sink)

Author: : jdaddy

Date: : 2011/4/10 13:42:13

URL:

Quote:

Yotrout wrote:

Lol. Texas instruments has got nothing on jdaddy.

Went out again this morning and not a bite. Four casts in a row with split shot lead to four snags in a row. Lost my favorite nymph. The beauty of not catching fish is the time spent pondering why im not catching any fish. I came up with what I believe is a pretty valid question. I read somewhere that trout feed from the bottom 80% of the time. Wouldn't that mean split shot is a must have all the time in moving water using a wet fly? I also made a decision today. If I don't catch a trout this week, I am going to find the Mr. Miyagi or Obi Wan of fly fishing to teach me. I plan on joining the Montgomery county chapter of Tu but I'm joining to assist in conservation efforts moreso than to get free lessons. Any guides out there operating on the cheap or possibly do group rates?

If you want to catch trout today (Sunday) send me an email.