I would sneak up behind them say twenty or thirty feet back...I threw everything...They would run up and look at it but no takers.

Because something alarmed them at the last moment.

The easiest answer? Drag. Just enough that a creature who lives in the water and is attuned to it knows something is wrong, even though it looks just fine to you.

If they looked at your first offering, and skipped it, move closer, wait a few, then try it again.
