When it comes to poppers I've found that balance is everything. The best poppers sit high in the water with their backs tilted down. I have found that, surprisingly, poppers aren't all that easy to tie. Believe me, I've tried and have failed miserably. For some reason, my attempts tend to sit flush on the water.

I've found that there is a huge difference between commercially offered poppers. Many are made of styrofoam and poorly balanced. A total waste of money.

These days I gave up trying to make my own and buy most of mine through LL Bean. They are great. Well-balanced with fantastic action. Great hook-ups. And very durable.
