I've never did check on it, but a now extinct fly shop that I used to go to, had a guide service and I was told the National Parks require 1million in insurance to get a permit from them. I'm only going by his word. I would not get into it Ive given it a long thought over the years and things have changed also. there is one fly shop 30 miles from me that has everything tied up around here and includeing fishing trips in New Zealand and Patagonia and all that. I'm waiting for sandfly to come down here and open a shop.
