

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : nymphing deep slow water

Re: nymphing deep slow water

Author: : MKern

Date: : 2011/4/19 18:54:37

URL:

I know trout live there and hang-out there. I just don't think it is productive to fish there unless a hatch or the fish move up in the water column to actively feed.

If there is a hole that is decent size and has a handful of trout in it there are also trout in teh riffle above and below that pool, and those trout are willig to hit any fly that drifts by (well without too much drag). Why stress over picky, non-feeding trout. Not saying they won't eat or aren't opportunistic. just saying that the ones above and below are aggressively feeding.