My pair of Redington Barrierflex are 14 years old approximately and i have patched the small holes and seams enough..its only been the last couple years that i had leaks ..probably due to just throwing them back into my wader bag wet and not hanging them up when i was done each time..my bad.

Well im in the market for a new pair of chest breathables and Redington did me good,also i hear many good things about Simms as well.

I also am thinking the waterproof zipper thing,another forum i am a mamber of ,has had a post with a slew of great replys about the zipper technology.

Redington Sonic Pros or Simms G4Z.

Decisions decisions,guys who have had or have simms what are your thoughts?

I wont even consider Hodgeman,Bailey,or Orvis,i cant seem to find the right sizing in thier models.
