I just got my second pair of simms and I am absolutely not happy with the durability. Both legs are soaked after 5-6 trips, and I have visually identified holes on both inseams.

My simms g3 waders, however, lasted a few years and are still going strong in a backup role.

I will not pay full price for simms waders after this experience, but am curious to see what comes of my interaction with them. From my own experiences and the experiences of those I know, I have to say that simms is all bark, no bite when it comes to brand recognition. We're all victims of strong marketing, IMnHO.
